Dear Mr. Stein:

Please forgive this belated reply to your inquiry of April 3. I admire your background and your initiative in writing. It is indeed necessary for artists today to act as their own publicists, especially at the beginning of their careers. I am all the more sorry that I cannot give you a more helpful response. We are among the many orchestras that are feeling the economic pinch, and as a result many of our concert activities are in the form of non-conducted chamber music.

Should your travels bring you to the West Coast, I would look forward with much pleasure to meeting you, and perhaps I can be of some assistance to you at that time.

With all good wishes.

Yours cordially,

Henri Temianka
